

International Programs

A branch campus in China. A field office in South Africa. A study abroad site in Mexico. An online course in Saudi Arabia. Our worldwide team guides institutions through these and other transnational initiatives.

We daily advise on faculty and staff postings abroad, international recruitment, foreign degree programs, and cross-border research. We tackle the nuts and bolts of international ventures, including corporate structure, licensure and accreditation, research compliance, and export controls.

Our experience at the intersection of education and globalization helps you anticipate and deal with risks before they become problems.

Representative experience

Advised several universities on negotiation and operation of comprehensive campuses in China, the Middle East, Europe, and Central America.

Established more than two dozen sites in Africa for university sponsored projects there, including for scientific research, clinical trials, and humanitarian service.

Advised a large state university on establishment of study abroad centers across Brazil, Mexico, and Spain.

Appointed to a university's International Operations Steering Committee to guide the institution's cross-border risk-management and compliance efforts.

Contacts

William F. Ferreira,
Washington, D.C.

Stephanie J. Gold,
Washington, D.C.

Michael J. Vernick,
Washington, D.C.

Practices

Education

Industries

Education

Latest thinking and events

Insights

International telework: lessons learned for academic institutions

Insights

Online education and digital services tax: A Mexico case study

News

ED releases further proposed rules to foster distance education and innovation

Insights

Doing your homework when offering online programs internationally

Analysis

Arbitration of international disputes by universities

Analysis

Capacity building projects in Africa: regulatory reflections