

Carine S. Stoick

Partner

Northern Virginia

Biography

In today's increasingly interconnected world, global businesses require effective legal solutions that reach across borders and between continents. Carine Stoick, head of the Aerospace and Defense M&A group, Americas Professional Development & Diversity Partner, and Office Administrative Partner of the Northern Virginia office, understands how to find and execute these solutions.

She counsels companies and private equity investors on both domestic and cross-border corporate matters, including mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, spin-offs, management and leveraged buy-outs, and corporate governance. From her experience advising clients both in the United States and abroad, Carine believes the best legal advice helps corporations and investors execute their business strategies no matter where their operations are located.

Based in Northern Virginia, Carine represents clients in regulated industries including aerospace and defense, government, health care, automotive, life sciences, and transportation. Having grown up speaking both French and Arabic at home, Carine leverages her international perspective and cross-border experience to advise clients on high-profile corporate transactions throughout the EU.
