

Financial Services Regulatory Investigations and Enforcement

Only a handful of elite international firms have been involved in the major investigations coming out of the global financial crisis. Only the very best of those firms have been involved in all those investigations, from LIBOR through FX to precious metals, and Hogan Lovells is one of them. We are truly global, handling all aspects of cross-border investigations as a single firm.

The advantages of a single firm in a complex investigation are obvious. Nothing falls between the cracks. One global practice, where you get coherent, coordinated, and cost-effective advice from lawyers who have been at the sharp end of investigations, involving all the major regulators and law enforcement agencies. Our experienced and versatile team includes senior lawyers from regulatory and government authorities in the United States and the UK. We bring deep knowledge of our sector, and our global resources, to assist our clients on their most important matters.

Representative experience

Handling the LIBOR investigations in the U.S., UK, EU, and Asia for a leading international bank.

Advising two banks in investigations in the United States and Europe into trading activities in the investment banking divisions of several global banks.

Representing two leading international banks in the investigations in the United States and the UK into FX trading.

Contacts

Marc Gottridge,
New York

Mark Lin,
Hong Kong

Arwen Handley,
London

Philip Parish,
London

Stephanie Yonekura,
Los Angeles

Practices

Crisis Leadership Team

Banking and Finance
Litigation

Investigations, White Collar, and Fraud

Industries

Financial Institutions

Defending a consumer lender against claims by U.S. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) and Department of Justice (DOJ) of alleged discrimination by mortgage brokers.

Advising a leading global bank in an investigation into its compliance with "Know Your Customer" rules, including the impact of applicable U.S. and UK/EU sanctions.

Advising a multinational financial services company in an investigation by the Hong Kong Monetary Authority into its senior employees, in relation to misselling bonds to nonprofessional investors.

Successfully defending a former director of CITIC against a claim by the STC in the longest ever MMT trial.

Representing a U.S.-based international bank in a DOJ investigation into alleged irregularities in the bank's underwriting of loans guaranteed by the U.S. Veterans Administration.

Representing a major U.S.-based bank in connection with a DOJ investigation into the activities of a Chinese telecommunications company.

Latest thinking and events

Insights

The acceleration of digital channels: Managing the fraud and cybersecurity risks

Analysis

Technology startups in Asia-Pacific: A jurisdictional guide

Insights

Biden's China policy: No details, but several clues on approach

News

New Release: Financial Institutions Horizons 2021

News

China promises clampdown on "debt evaders" as bond defaults shake market

Insights

FCA enforcement: what can we draw from last year's activity and what lies ahead?