

Rulemaking and Legislative Advocacy

Few legal services provide as much return on investment as advocacy in national and state rulemakings and legislation. We help you craft your policy positions and then advocate them before the agencies and U.S. Congress — both before and after rules and legislation have been proposed.

At Hogan Lovells, we frequently draft rulemaking comments and amendments to rules and bills, prepare supporting documentation, and present them to key agency officials and congressional staff. We also prepare clients to testify at congressional hearings, and help to build consensus among entities with similar interests as those of our clients.

Representative experience

Successfully represented largest marketer of recycled coal ash in parallel rulemaking and legislative efforts to have EPA regulate disposed coal ash as a nonhazardous waste.

Prepared comments on EPA's hazardous waste generator and pharmaceutical waste rules for multiple retail clients and 11 industrial trade associations.

Drafted and advocated for amendments to California's hazardous waste laws adopted by the California legislature that promote reverse distribution of consumer products.

On behalf of a California public agency, secured congressional authorization for federal loans and loan guarantees for the acquisition of essential wildlife habitat.
